THEME TONIGHT: We are a war economy looking for a war

Exactly what Wilkerson predicted after the election – see quote in Productivity Backlash – in 1st Quarter Wrap Up

How does the military industrial economy get unaddicted to war?

One possible factor worth considering:

David Rockefeller died on March 20th

The men who killed Kennedy are dying –

Power vacuum?

High Octane Speculation

Alleged Sarin Gas Attack
Unlikely Sarin

0% chance it was Assad

Possibilities:

Assad troops working for third party

Robert Parry: drone strike by Israel/Saudi team

WHAT I BELIEVE - Third party working both sides – trying to start a war

Likely also behind:

St Petersburg Subway bombing

US media manipulation

Neocon chicken hawks

Is this Report true?

Sir Evelyn de Rothschild has urged western nations to “unite as one” in order to “intervene” in Syria and overthrow Assad to “usher Syrians into the new century.”

Describing Assad as “a brutal dictator who must be bought to heel” during a grim speech at a fundraiser in the City of London financial district, Rothschild demanded that western nations “topple the Assad regime” because it is “resistant to common decency” and a threat to our “corporate values.” Rothschild also referred to his family businesses which originated with five brothers setting up the “first and only truly global banking system,” operating from London, Paris, Vienna, Naples and Frankfurt just before the turn of the 19th century.

He said: “These five brothers, working together to exchange information and ideas, built an extraordinary business that superseded boundaries and cultures.

“Just over 200 years later, these business ideals, which have stood the test of time, are now under threat by despotic regimes that are resistant to common decency. These regimes pose a threat to our international corporate values.”

Sir Evelyn, a billionaire financier who is married to Lynn Forester de Rothschild, did not explain why world governments should listen to his demands for interventionist wars in the Middle-East.

However it has been suggested he is advocating for the invasion of Syria because the nation remains one of only five nations left in the world that does not have a Rothschild controlled central bank.

In the year 2000 there were eight countries without a Rothschild controlled central bank, however Iraq, Libya and Afghanistan – immediately after western invasion – now all have established central banks.

Wesley Clark –

Because I had been through the Pentagon right after 9/11. About ten days after 9/11, I went through the Pentagon and I saw Secretary Rumsfeld and Deputy Secretary Wolfowitz. I went downstairs just to say hello to some of the people on the Joint Staff who used to work for me, and one of the generals called me in. He said, "Sir, you've got to come in and talk to me a second." I said, "Well, you're too busy." He said, "No, no." He says, "We've made the decision we're going to war with Iraq." This was on or about the 20th of September. I said, "We're going to war with Iraq? Why?" He said, "I don't know." He said, "I guess they don't know what else to do." So I said, "Well, did they find some information connecting Saddam to al-Qaeda?" He said, "No, no." He says, "There's nothing new that way. They just made the decision to go to war with Iraq." He said, "I guess it's like we don't know what to do about terrorists, but we've got a good military and we can take down governments." And he said, "I guess if the only tool you have is a hammer, every problem has to look like a nail."

So I came back to see him a few weeks later, and by that time we were bombing in Afghanistan. I said, "Are we still going to war with Iraq?" And he said, "Oh, it's worse than that." He reached over on his desk. He picked up a piece of paper. And he said, "I just got this down from upstairs" -- meaning the Secretary of Defense's office -- "today." And he said, "This is a memo that describes how we're going to take out seven countries in five years, starting with Iraq, and then Syria, Lebanon, Libya, Somalia, Sudan and, finishing off, Iran." I said, "Is it classified?" He said, "Yes, sir." I said, "Well, don't show it to me." And I saw him a year or so ago, and I said, "You remember that?" He said, "Sir, I didn't show you that memo! I didn't show it to you!"

WHAT IS ESTABLISHMENT'S BIGGEST FEAR-

Not just the economy – they are losing control – pedophilia, election pushbacks, 9/11, real surveillance practices They are afraid that they can not maintain team loyalty within the establishment, let alone the economic model, and among leaders around the globe

Run the risk of unraveling – both in establishment, in economy and then various independent leaders around the world.

Great plug from Noonan today:

But there's something low, unseemly and ugly in the efforts to take him out so publicly and humiliatingly, to turn him into a human oil spot on the tarmac—this not only from his putative colleagues but now even the president. “I like Steve, but you have to remember he was not involved in my campaign until very late,” Mr. Trump purred to the New York Post's Michael Goodwin.

Goldman Sachs: space-mining for platinum is 'more realistic than perceived'

Goldman Sachs is bullish on space mining with "asteroid-grabbing spacecraft." In a 98-page note for clients seen by Business Insider, analyst Noah Poponak and his team argue that platinum mining in space is getting cheaper and easier, and the rewards are becoming greater as time goes by.

"While the psychological barrier to mining asteroids is high, the actual financial and technological barriers are far lower. Prospecting probes can likely be built for tens of millions of dollars each and Caltech has suggested an asteroid-grabbing spacecraft could cost $2.6bn," the report says.

$2.6 billion (£2 billion) sounds like a lot, but it is only about one-third the amount that has been invested in Uber, putting the price well within reach of today's VC funds. It is also comparable to the setup cost for a regular earthbound mine. (This MIT paper estimates a new rare earth metal mine can cost up to \$1 billion, from scratch.)

The price of spacecraft is plummeting, thanks to reusable rockets from Elon Musk's SpaceX and Jeff Bezos's Blue Origin. It used to cost $35 million (£28 million) to send one person up on a Soyuz rocket. Today, Virgin Galactic hopes to get space tourists into space for something like $250,000 (£200,000), Goldman says. More broadly, the price of all new rockets is falling over time:

Exhibit 19: Light rocket pricing

New designs tend to focus on a

Goldman Sachs

Those economics make going into space more feasible. The rewards would be vast: just one asteroid might contain $50 billion (£40 billion) of platinum:

"Space mining could be more realistic than perceived. Water and platinum group metals that are abundant on asteroids are highly disruptive from a technological and economic standpoint. Water is easily converted into rocket fuel, and can even be used unaltered as a propellant. Ultimately being able to stockpile the fuel in LEO [low earth orbit] would be a game changer for how we access space. And platinum is platinum. According to a 2012 Reuters interview with Planetary Resources, a single asteroid the size of a football field could contain $25bn- $50bn worth of platinum."

There is just one problem: That same asteroid would instantly tank the entire platinum market: "Successful asteroid mining would likely crater the global price of platinum, with a single 500-meter-wide asteroid containing nearly 175X the global output, according to MIT's Mission 2016."

Nonetheless, Goldman is bullish. "We expect that systems could be built for less than that given trends in the cost of manufacturing spacecraft and improvements in technology. Given the capex of mining operations on Earth, we think that financing a space mission is not outside the realm of possibility."

Going forward, we must totally dismiss the notion that movements should be centered around individual politicians, and center them around principles. It wasn't "getting the right person elected" that changed anything in the civil rights movement, rather it was mass popular movements by average citizens who pressured politicians. It's never the politicians, it's always the people. This is how it's always been and how it must be today. I think activism has completely lost its way and until it finds strategic understanding, will continue to fail. There's power in numbers, and we have the numbers on all sorts of issues if we can only get out of our little tribal comfort zones and accept people as allies in struggles of particular importance even if you disagree with them on a host of other issues.

“Just when I thought I was out...they pull me back in.” ~ Michael Corleone, Godfather III

By Catherine Austin Fitts

The question we ask in our 1st Quarter Wrap Up is “Can a new administration preserve a prosperous economy without more debt, crime and war?” The question is steadily being answered with a resounding “No!”

The budget blueprint published by the President in March suggested that everyone would be pleased with more money – both the factions that want to keep the global empire going and the factions that want instead to rebuild American infrastructure and the core US Army – by simply throwing more money at the Department of Defense. The blueprint has no mention of the $11.5 trillion missing from the Department of Defense, including $6.5 trillion missing in fiscal 2015. Apparently, the new administration wants to continue the practice of spending money outside of Constitutional requirements and in violation of the laws related to financial management.

However, this imperial budget leaves no money for health care or, for that matter, for anything else. Expect the actual May budget submission to make for fascinating reading. Please read our 1st Quarter Wrap Up presentation on the Trump administration to understand the important issues – all of which the corporate media ignore.

This week Secretary of State Rex Tillerson reversed his position that Assad could stay, and the President ordered air strikes on Syria, claiming that Assad is responsible for alleged chemical weapons used in an attack on the rebel-held town of Khan Sheikhoun in Idlib Province of Syria on Tuesday.

I'm with [Ron Paul: There is zero chance that Assad would have used chemical weapons deliberately.]

Steve Bannon was removed from the National Security Council this week. Steve is the guy who helped craft the inaugural message: “We will seek friendship and goodwill with the nations of the world – but we do so with the understanding that it is the right of all nations to put their own interests first. We do not seek to impose our way of life on anyone, but rather to let it shine as an example for everyone to follow.”

Moving onto the National Security Council as Bannon was exiting was Goldman Sachs partner Dina Powell, who had used her Arab heritage and language skills in the Bush administration to help Condoleezza Rice engineer Middle Eastern wars that have killed over 1,000,000 Arabs. Powell's appointment followed the President's meeting on Friday with Rice, now a partner in RiceHadleyGates, LLC.

At the same time, the President's son-in-law Jared Kushner joined Marine General Joseph Dunford, the chairman of the US Joint Chiefs of Staff in meetings with US military advisors in Iraq.

While ordering air strikes against Syria, President Trump described the inhumanity of using chemical weapons on one's own people. He did not mention how the use of chemical weapons in US-sponsored global spraying, vaccines, and narcotics trafficking likely killed more Americans this week than numbered in any of the various alleged Syrian death counts. Although the use of chemical weapons in Syria, and Assad's responsibility has not yet been documented or proved, the chemical assault of the American government on its own people has been documented and proven repeatedly. Millions of people voted for Trump in the hope that he would stop US government chemical assaults on the American people.

Events in Syria likely have more to do with the EU approval last week of the Nordstrom pipeline with Russia than with our concern for the rights of the Syrian people. America is still using its post-9/11 strategy to make war on 7 countries as described by General Wesley Clark. With the approval of the Nordstrom pipeline, the feasibility of the Qatar-Turkey pipeline with transit through Syria becomes urgent. This is not just pipeline politics, however. The primacy of the US dollar as reserve currency depends on energy dominance.

However, President Trump would be wise to remember the words of General Colin Powell, "You break it, you own it."

I will discuss these and other current events this week on Money & Markets. Dr. Joseph Farrell joins me for a discussion of News Trends & Stories for the 1st Quarter Wrap Up. Because we focused on the new administration last week, our focus this week is global markets and geopolitics as well as Science & Technology. We also discuss what inspired us the most these last three months.

Make sure to access the News Trends & Stories section of the 1st Quarter Wrap Up web presentation linked from your subscriber links in this commentary. Post and e-mail your questions for Ask Catherine.

Just signed up... Got to pay to play...

Have had a few interchanges with Joseph Farrell on operation paper clip science guys...

In 1963 I worked with and on some of Dr. Alexander Lippisch projects at Collins Radio Company in Cedar Rapids, Iowa... Arthur Collins Hired Lippisch in 1950... Reason was we wanted to design aircraft autopilots... To do that one needs to know the attributes of the aircraft to be controlled... Ah, Lippisch was the best in the world...

Yes, there were two space programs... The one that the public saw and the one the public did not see...I worked on both... The one the public did not see worked on 4 things:

- 1: free energy from space - zero point energy..
- 2: antigravity
- 3: things that went faster than the speed of light
- 4: accelerated learning...

...Most have figured out the first two
...the faster than the speed of light thing is hardly mentioned..
...the accelerated learning thing is still buried so deep...

Here's the deal:

If it takes the accelerated learner 1 week to learn a matter, and it takes the traditional institution 30 weeks to teach the student the same matter, it shows the compression of time by a factor of 30 to 1. This is a profound strategic and tactical advantage...

The algorithm tool set is usually referred to as a "Universal Content Decoder" though is still deep fog in regard to what it really means... These are really a handy thing to have at your disposal...

After the crash of the dotcom biz sector in 2000, we ran our world wide trapline to see how many pieces we could find in the public domain..(remember I'm still bound by my nations security agreements)... We found about 60% of the stuff in the public domain...

In 2010, ran it again... Now 80%, hmmm. Let's start getting serious about making one of these.... The problems are so complex, it requires software that writes and tests software....that software is required as the final functional operatives-executables...

In 1966, we just parted the corn stocks north of town and made it happen...

We are finding and publishing so interesting stuff...

Thanks for your for your good work...

Hello dear Catherine,

Do you suppose free tuition for college in NY State was done at least in part to keep from loosing future tax base and revenue (you must remain in state for as many years as your schooling)

(If) and when state and private pension funds began to fail and reductions are implemented, do you think it likely property taxes in lower tax states will be raised to be comparable to New York other higher tax states?

Thanks for all

Hi Catherine —

I know the last thing you need is another book recommendation but I can't resist.

Mickey Singer has a book called, "The Surrender Experiment" which is basically an autobiography. It starts out as a spiritual memoir, which is quite exceptional, but the end chronicles one of the most amazing stories of US prosecutorial overreach that I could imagine - until I heard your interview with Howard Root. The stories are actually remarkably similar. Mickey's company was called "Medical Manager."

I listened to the audiobook which is particularly wonderful because Mickey narrates it himself.

https://www.amazon.com/Surrender-Experiment-Journey-Lifes-Perfection/dp/080414110X/ref=sr_1_1?ie=UTF8&qid=1491587064&sr=8-1&keywords=the+surrender+experiment

I couldn't resist mentioning it... hoping to see you and Joseph again in Louisville next month.

Hi Catherine,

If you're playing a game of chess and not paying close attention to what your opponent is doing, you are certain to lose. I believe the 'Globalists' are primarily the Zionists of the Federal Reserve and the creators of Communism. That being said and having read, M.S. King's, 'The Bad War' and listening to Joel Skousen's, 'April 7th World Affairs Brief', I'm wondering if..... The Globalists are planning the destruction of our country by Russia & China joining forces. Have you given this any thought???

Agree we have a concerted effort to start WWII

Catherine,

Just watched this Greg Braden video regarding "Cycles," and thought it would be of interest to you. I would love to hear your thoughts on the viability of the material presented. Having Greg as a guest on the Solari program might be a possibility.

<https://youtu.be/GxERTlbAo7g>

Watched – ran into integrate problems with Braden's work a while back so have not considered him since.

Hi Catherine,

I am a naturopath and entrepreneur. In 2008, I discovered you on Youtube and have been listening ever since; recently I become a subscriber and have been listening to your reports the last few months.

As a listener, I have a better understanding about what is going on then the average person. As a naturopath, I am familiar with GMO's, vaccine toxicity and medical suppression. I was extremely relived when Trump was elected, that said, the more I listen to you the more I feel frustrated about what is going on and slightly despondent.

I have come to terms with the financial coup de ta, the truth behind September 11 and the medical lies but last night I was listening to an old solari report with John Rappaport about suppression; you mentioned multiple shooters at Columbine (?) and that a John Lennon wasn't killed by a 'crazy' person but by pro-war officials who wanted to shut down his message of peace.

I was raised catholic, although now no longer practice however, I continue to have a strong faith in God and a healthy spiritual life (daily prayer, meditation etc.) I have heard you quote your pastor before saying "If we can face it God can fix it." I believe that but sometimes feel very distraught over what I am learning. I am engaged to be married and am scared to death to have a child--ignorance is bliss and I am not ignorant.

Do you have any advice for those of us who have a hard time digesting the information?

Slow down the digestion – Get a framework that you can use for risk management and then focus on living a free and inspired life

My practice – stay in a state of amusement – focus on action – both health and wealth.

This question is for Catherine as I do not pretend to have the background knowledge even to hazard a competent answer. Given that the U.S. population was around 5% in 1945 and it's share of resource use about 50%. And given that U.S. Foreign Policy was directed in part toward maintaining the resultant high living standard; largely via covert or aggressive means to obtain needed resources at extremely low prices. In your opinion Catherine if the U.S. had followed the Chinese model of barter; exchanging infrastructure for resources. With no IMF and no strings attached. If the U.S. had say expanded the Army Corp of engineers when we had a 2 million man army and sent those engineers to undeveloped countries and bartered infrastructure for natural resources without further strings attached. Would the United States be able to maintain the same high level standard of living for so long that it has enjoyed since World War 2 by less scrupulous and unsavory methods?

Laurence:

I would estimate yes. We would have still needed to have a pretty significant navy/military presence but that could have been financed by reserve currency statut. However, we would not have been able to siphon off the extraordinary amounts for blackbudget/hidden system of finance and the leadership would have been determined by meritocracy as opposed to inside information and assasination.

So what we got from the existing model is the privilege of being ruled by the men who killed Kennedy and the transfer of global wealth to a SSP and Breakaway civilization and what ever else is behind the veil.

Hi Catherine:

Thank you for sharing your brain via your website and doing interviews with Greg Hunter; I have found your reporting and commentary to be uniquely insightful and illuminating.

I live an hour outside of Pittsburgh in Ligonier, PA (between the two mountain ranges to the east of Pittsburgh; our version of Galt's Gulch I suppose).

We our observing extraordinary levels of geoengineering in our skies. Essentially, jets are "spraying" in grid patterns day and night. During heavy spraying, we observe "fallout" in our ground level atmosphere (the particles appear to be reflective as the fallout presents to the human eye as light flashes darting about as would "excited" particles in a gaseous medium). The spraying has come to dominate our local climate; I cannot remember the last time I observed direct sunlight or a natural sky ... it is surreal.

The FAA has informed me via a phone conversation that: "the planes spraying in grid patterns are the US military". I have yet to receive a response to my inquiries from the US military as you might imagine.

Have you come across the spraying programs in your work? Do you have any thoughts or observations regarding the spraying programs?

Thank you in advance for your time and consideration.

Dear Catherine,
Thank you for your inspiring leadership so needed in the world today! Please share with us how you manage to be so productive. Surely being brilliant helps.

Might I suggest a 5th profile—namely, “Misguided Ideologues.” Misguided Ideologues filter reality based on their politics and religion. They may have kind hearts and good intentions but they’re easily led astray by Scorpions. My local church has many Misguided Ideologues who sponsor and promote illegal Syrian refugees. These good people unfortunately buy into the many lies of the mainstream media.

Increasingly today there’s a “Tale of Two Truths.” The Misguided Ideologues beat the drum for one set of facts while objective observation leads me to postulate a nearly opposite set of facts. While Absolute Truth may be unattainable per Thomas Dewey, we can better discern the truth by treating it as a “working hypothesis” that is continuously tested and refined through unbiased observations and a healthy dose of skepticism. Sometimes the working hypothesis is changed radically based on new observations or revised assumptions, resulting in a Paradigm Shift as Thomas Kuhn taught us. Misguided Ideologues, however, never seem to question their own underlying assumptions nor do they observe the world with an open mind. How can they ever be changed into Titanic Turners?

Watch List: April 12, 2017

Watch List

The items listed below represent potential emerging issues that our analysts are tracking. These can be long term or short term, but will be updated daily. If an item on our Watch List becomes critical, we will email you a full analysis explaining its significance.

Each Saturday, we will follow up our daily Watch List for each week with our conclusions on these issues.

- China-North Korea: After yesterday's reports of troop movements by the People's Liberation Army, China's Ministry of Defense issued a terse denial of the specifics of those reports. More importantly, Chinese President Xi Jinping and U.S. President Donald Trump spoke on the telephone, with Xi reportedly emphasizing the need for a peaceful denuclearization of the Korean Peninsula. That the two leaders would need to speak again so soon after meeting in person – and with a U.S. carrier battle group on its way to the Korean Peninsula, stopping in the East China Sea for an exercise with Japan's Maritime Self-Defense Force – is somewhat ominous and may indicate that China is worried about an impending U.S. strike. This remains on internal watch.
- North Korea: On Tuesday, the North Korean Supreme People's Assembly reinstated and convened the Diplomatic Commission. Created in 1989 and abolished in 1998, the Diplomatic Commission is supposedly responsible for handling issues related to foreign affairs. Re-establishing this body could mean a change in who is managing the day-to-day affairs of North Korea's external relations. If so, it could be an indication of future North Korean foreign relations. We will study the history of this commission and watch for anything suggesting a change in North Korean behavior.

- Russia-Japan: Media reported on April 11 that Russia flew two Tu-95 strategic bombers into the Sea of Japan, causing Japan to scramble two fighter jets to confront the planes and advise them to turn back. Russia responded by scrambling two Il-38 fighters and sending them to accompany the bombers near the island of Hokkaido. Later that day, Russia sent two Tu-142 anti-submarine planes into the same area. We need to understand if Russia's planes actually crossed into Japanese sovereign territory and how long it took Russia's fighters to arrive on the scene. We should also examine prior circumstances in which Russia sent fighters to accompany its bombers.
- Belarus: Belarusian President Alexander Lukashenko and Russian President Vladimir Putin had a telephone conversation about implementing agreements reached at an April 3 meeting in St. Petersburg. Russia made concessions regarding Belarus, with Putin agreeing to refinance Belarus' debt. He also agreed to renew 24 million tons a year of oil supplies to Belarus and promised Gazprom would give Belarus discounts on gas supplies in 2018 and 2019. In exchange, Belarus will pay back its debt of more than $720 million for gas supplies. Considering the amount of concessions Russia made to Belarus, the question of exactly what Russia is buying in Belarus becomes most important to understand. Answering that question requires a good understanding of the stability of the Belarusian economy.

The deep state and its associated criminal factions have been amazingly successful at deflecting attention from three of the biggest crimes of the past decade and 1/2: 1) 9-11 as an inside job 2) the financial coup death 3) pedophilia No one talks about this stuff anymore because folks are focused on all the war and political bullshit. In the meantime, the financial situation we are in is totally unsustainable. I am not sure how any ordinary working person can make it any more. Taxes are ridiculous. Prices for stuff is ridiculous. Quality of stuff is deteriorating. State and municipal governments can no longer sustain themselves given tax bases and the totally bloated bureaucracies they are running. Productivity as you have talked about is non-existent. Yet, the deep state and associated continue to be subsidized, full steam ahead - and it is sucking the life out of everything else in this world. I am staying at a Hyatt in the Chicago area. A 2 ounce bag of chips in the gift store is $3. A banana is $1.85. Breakfast coffee, juice and toast was $15. A natural lemon and water drink 12 ounces was $6.50!!! Prices are absolutely insane. Taxes are insane. We are at the breaking point. Very few people are not going backwards financially. Absolutely unsustainable. H
