ASK CATHERINE

Hi Catherine,

Hope all is well! I have a question regarding investing in REITS - the Vanguard REIT Mutual Fund is available in my 401k.

- My concern is given the profound shift in retail to online shopping and the anticipated closure of many shopping malls...would this cause one to rethink a general REIT like Vanguard.
- Or is there enough broad exposure separate from retail that make these still a good option when creating a portfolio for retirement.

Don't know that particular REIT – so can not speak to it.

Goal is to offset falling returns on commercial with rising returns on residential – could be one of the reasons we are shifting to a much higher % of rental population

Depends on % in shopping malls.

On the administrative front, is there an option for me to upgrade my membership so I routinely receive a hard-copy of the quarterly wrap-ups?

LAUNCHING A PREMIUM SUBSCRIPTION WHEN WE LAUNCH NEW WEBSITE – no expected by early fall. – will automatically get hard copy

I'm going to be 63 I am divorced single I don't have any savings but when I have been doing is buying silver actual physical silver that really is my only asset I'm selling real estate and I anticipate having to do so until the end I went through a bad divorce and lost everything during the crash is that really all I can do to try and hedge myself into old age? It feels like my only viable option

Is this a possibility -

How about partnering up with local investors to buy and rent real estate. LOCAL REITS? I see lots of people who want to invest in local real estate but do not want to have to deal with the nuts and bolts. Will trust a more seasoned, experience person, particularly if they know the ropes of the local real estate business.
